Asset Valuations

Our expertise in financial modelling and forecasting gives our clients an assurance that the information underlying the business valuation estimates are as accurate and reliable as possible. Moreover, our experience in business valuation gives an assurance that appropriate methods are used to reach accurate, reliable estimates of the market value of our clients' business. Our business valuation estimates represent what business owners could reasonably expect the market prices of their businesses to be in a transaction.

We have extensive experience of carrying out business valuations for a range of purposes including, acquisitions & disposals, shareholder disputes, matrimonial cases, compulsory purchase order compensation claims and contractual disputes. We combine our forensic expertise and valuations experience to provide a commercial approach to business valuation.

In the case of specialist valuations, we are able to draw on technical expertise from our corporate finance team and on in depth industry knowledge. As valuation work is very much a subjective exercise, we are able to produce a range of valuations for the business concerned along with an opinion as to the likely value of the business within that range.

Moore provides opinions of value in respect of:

- Corporate valuations of private companies, public companies, start-up companies and joint venture interests
- Partnership interests, corporate projects and portfolios of unlisted investments
- Intellectual property valuations of trademarks, brands, patents, copyrights, customer-related intangible assets, technology, research and development of goodwill
- Investment valuations of ordinary shares, restricted shares, preference shares, minority, shareholdings, controlling shareholdings, bonds debentures, warrants and rights

The world is ever-changing and increasingly more complex. Companies strive to be smart, innovative and forward thinking. We provide in-depth technical knowledge and extensive industry experience to keep you in control and aware of issues as they arise, as well as providing the expertise that goes beyond the traditional transaction advisory services.
